Chief Justice Chase on Reconstruction and Negro Suffrage

At the annual Commencement of Dartmouth College, Chief Justice Chase was present and [illegible] the students and their friends [illegible] in a speech which is thus reported in the New York [illegible]:

Mr. President: It may be deemed improper for me, occupying my position, to speak upon political subjects. I am precluded from this field, but here among these I would like to say [illegible] a few things that I would not [illegible] [illegible] the names of her children who have been [illegible] But the [illegible] [illegible] the true result [illegible] has been [illegible] the South. [illegible]

The right of suffrage is a right of freedom [illegible] has been made free by the causes and events of the war. It will be [illegible] that the negroes are [illegible] But observation recently assures me that they are sufficiently intelligent. There are among them on the plantations carpenters, mechanics, blacksmiths, preachers, who are very skillful and intelligent. At least there is at the South among the colored men a real aristocracy of nature. There are those who are intelligent enough to vote a ticket and the [illegible] to it when it is put into their hands. They can take the ticket [illegible] and if they are unable to tell the [illegible] why they vote it they yet know enough to walk up to the ballot box and put it in. And I think that is about as much intelligence as those before me have. I think if I should ask the [illegible] of you why you voted as you did you would not give the [illegible] I think you, Mr. President and Mr. Ex-President, and you gentlemen of the trustees, and those distinguished gentlemen here could not tell why they voted as they did at the last election. You found a ticket ready to your hand, and you knew enough to go to the ballot and deposit. You having had a hand in making it and the colored men of the South can do as well as you have done.

Now I wish to say a few words about the mode of reorganizing the South. I do not agree with [illegible] that my learned friend advanced yesterday, that the States of the South have become territories, or that they are out or have been out of the Union. But I may [illegible] at the result he aims at may be reached by a different theory and progress from that. It is my opinion that the States remain States. But the war, a great and stupendous fact, has effected changes, changes as real and permanent as those effected by any other method. It has effected a complete destruction of slavery. No one doubts that. Slavery is done. And it has accomplished other changes. The white population of the South has become free. Those who were slaves at the beginning of the war have become freedmen and citizens now. And the rebel governments of the Southern States have been destroyed. All the machinery of those governments has come to an end, and now hold [illegible], as I do, that the States remain States, the [illegible] process in the work of reorganization is that the governments now revert into the hands of the Southern people. They are to rebuild the governments of their States. But who are the people? That is now the question. I hold that the war has made every colored man a part of the people. Therefore the colored men of the South should bear an equal hand in reorganization. The war has made them citizens, and the right of suffrage in the reorganization of a State pertains to every citizen, whatever may have been his status before the war begun.

And they are moral enough to be allowed the suffrage. They are very religious people and many of them belong to church, or if, as a friend suggested that only members of the church should be allowed to vote, that restriction should be made, they would all be members of the church by next week, and that if it were not a very moralizing process would be a very speedy and effectual political one. But they are moral enough to be allowed this right. They have a great many black preachers among them who are now preaching the sanctity of marriage, and if they have but little knowledge of the distinction between meum and tuum, never having been taught it by their late masters, yet these preachers are now instructing them in the rights of property. Therefore to give them the ballot will be eminently safe and eminently right.

And this right will have to be admitted if not now, yet some time. Our classical knowledge will give us an illustration. When the sybilline book was offered to the Roman Emperor and refused, a leaf was taken out, and this was repeated at each refusal until but a single leaf was left, and the same price was demanded for that. And it was paid. So we shall have to pay this price. We shall pay it at last. It is right, too, that we should. The right of suffrage is one of the universal rights of man, and our country must recognize this before the sacrifices of the brave men who have fought and died for it will be truly recognized. We must take this right up to the [illegible] and lay it upon His sacred altar [illegible] eternal justice. We may then build the monumental hall for the noble sons of Dartmouth and fill it with the trophies of war and the trophies of peace. But our true monument [illegible] country that grants the universal rights of man to every man.

When we do this, then we shall have a national monument which shall be grand and [illegible] to the temple of [illegible] and its summit shall be greeted by the first rays of the morning and the last rays of the evening sun, and it shall be a fitting symbol of our redeemed land.

The Blackfoot Mines. The following is an extract from a letter from R. S. [illegible] to Mr. [illegible] of this Valley. It bears date, [illegible] Montana Territory, September [illegible]

We arrived at Hellgate on the 4th of July and after a [illegible] prospect up the Big Blackfoot. We [illegible] there to find anything [illegible] and at length made our way to [illegible] Here [illegible] in Washington, Idaho [illegible] Montana [illegible] [illegible] Walla Walla [illegible] Salt Lake [illegible] [illegible] the States via the Missouri [illegible] Columbia [illegible] Walla Walla [illegible] Mullan [illegible]—W. W. Statesman.

History of the Navy. The Navy Department have designated the Rev. [illegible] of Cincinnati, to write the history of the Navy and of our naval enterprises during the rebellion.

[illegible] at Sermons. It is superabundantly [illegible] that [illegible] the clergy [illegible] indebted to reform and progress. The Christian truth [illegible] by them has in its practical application by the more earnest and [illegible] of themselves or of their hearers [illegible] from the clerical class the most formidable [illegible] Teaching that men at all love their neighbor as themselves the American clergy have been the strongest bulwark and pillars of slavery, which John Wesley spoke only literal and sober truth when he declared it is the sum of all villanies. Those reverends consecrated what that true man and clear-sighted Christian stigmatized as the essence of atrocity. The men who tell us that they stand on the watch tower of Zion and [illegible] commission from Jesus Christ himself are the very men who above all others are responsible for the late rebellion, the blackest work [illegible] ever perpetrated on earth. To say this is [illegible] religion, all whose purity is her own [illegible] divine potency has no more striking illustration than that she survives even the treachery and [illegible] of her professed champions.

As it has been in the past, so it is in the present. [illegible] evil genii that have lured multitudes of Missourians into the pitfall of rebellion against the people's rule [illegible] in the name of religion fomenting hostility against the Constitution just formed by the representatives of the people of the State and ratified by the people themselves. This in the name of religion. One of these friends of his race, signing himself a "Presbyterian Minister," not long since declared in the columns of the Republican that if there ever existed a just cause for an appeal to arms to resist despotism, that cause was now furnished for resistance to the New Constitution. Yet he was considerate enough to counsel that no such appeal should be made. Why? Because that would be wicked? Treason? No; but because it would be inexpedient. Here is a specimen of a class of men who affect to be the [illegible] of society, yet whom even the lessons of the last four years have not sufficed to inspire with respect for the government of the ballot box. These men counsel — not submission to laws deemed unjust, and reliance upon the popular sense of justice to afford a subsequent remedy, but deliberate disobedience to and defiance of such laws. Precisely this and this only was the animus of the rebellion. By teaching this diabolical heresy these same men have brought the bitterest of accursed waters over this State in which they now claim, unchallenged, the right in Heaven's name, to distill this identical poison into the hearts of their hearers.

Salus populi suprema lex esto, is the most significantly appropriate motto that could have been devised for Missouri. No law can sit enthroned above that of self preservation. If the security of the State demand, the people have a right, the most absolute conceivable, not only to require test oaths of any class or classes of her citizens, but to banish them from her borders forever. The setting up of a claim to rights fatal to popular rule and peaceful free government, has been, throughout the whole controversy between freedom and crime, the characteristics between the State rights and personal rights traitors. When the Republic stirred a finger to avert the assassin's knife from her throat, the assassin always impudently raised eyes of pretended piety to Heaven, and claimed, in the news and by all the hallowed associations of free speech, free press and personal religious liberty, the holy right to apply that knife at pleasure. Where would our country be to-day, if these white cravated instigators of war for slavery had prevailed? Just where it will be if we permit them to prevail in future. If they have neither brains nor education enough to know, nor Christianity enough to feel, that in a free country law must be peacefully obeyed, and a remedy for its imperfections confidingly looked for in the future, then the law in its sacred supremacy must be maintained nevertheless. The whole spirit and worth, and glory of our institutions lies in the justice and wisdom of such [illegible] and trust. We respect the honest men of all parties. If any preacher or other person cannot conscientiously take a qualifying oath, but in the temper of a law abiding citizen, refrains from violating the law, we will not quarrel with him for seeking a legitimate repeal or [illegible] of such law. We might even join him in such seeking. But first of all the just supremacy of even an unjust law enacted in a free State, must be respected while it remains a law. Our belief is that the required test oath is not only eminently just, but by the developed hostility to it, is demonstrated to be necessary—the very spirit of so [illegible] evokes being to us the highest proof that above all things the thing most indispensable to be done is to exercise that curse bearing spirit from the State. Let these haughty followers (?) of the meek and lowly Prince of Peace [illegible] their words of war, and they will only intensify and emphasize the argument for the test oath in all its comprehensiveness and inclusiveness. Let them, on the other hand, deport themselves as sensible gentlemen and good citizens, Christianly submitting to the law though they doubt it ever our, and they will far the more honor religion and weaken the reasons for the exaction of the oath.—St. Louis Democrat.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

THURSDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 5, 1865

THE DECLINE OF SECTIONAL ANIMOSITY.—That the Southerners who went into secession from conviction and choice should suffer chagrin in defeat and retain secret animosity after professing submission to the Government is, say the Springfield Mass. Republican, natural enough. We should consider them hypocrites if they pretended to rejoice in their own defeat and to love us for having defeated them. Human nature is about the same in the south as elsewhere. We are not surprised at the personal exhibitions of ill feeling reported; we are surprised that they are so few and of so little importance. But the most remarkable thing connected with the collapse of the rebellion is the general and ready admission in the South that slavery died with it. The Southern people make no qualified admission on the subject. They do not even take advantage of the doubts implied in the language of the emancipation proclamation itself and have no hope that the Supreme Court will invalidate it in any degree.

While some of the oracles of freedom still declare that proclamation of no account, a mere bull against the comet—the Southern people declare slavery to be forever dead, and profess their readiness to conform to the new system. If they do this in good faith, we can forgive any temporary ebullition of ill temper. Secession and slavery destroyed, we have gained everything essential, time and social intercourse will do all the rest. The Richmond Times has an article on this subject which is in excellent spirit. It rejoices that the vexed question of slavery is forever removed from politics, and makes this appeal to magnanimity and fraternal feeling:

All the prejudice generated by the conflicts over slavery will have to pass away before this work will be complete and thorough. This we do not expect to occur at once, and in the twinkling of an eye. It would be unreasonable to do so. The turtle and the serpent feel the instinct to bite after the head and body have been separated. The habit of hating must be expected for a time to survive the causes that inspired it, but for the want of nourishment it will eventually die. When two combatants engage in battle, and one has the ill-luck to be thrown down and beaten all the world over, the privilege of grumbling is conceded to him. So prevalent is this among men that it has become a proverb. To the defeated belongs the privilege of grumbling and to the victors belong the spoils. The victor is supposed to be in a good humor, and ought to be in a good humor. He must be vindictive indeed if he continues sullen and resentful. The North ought not to expect the South to rise from the earth with a bright and smiling face, with thanks upon its tongue and happiness welling up in its heart. When the Northern and Southern people can be prevailed upon to bear and forbear, to banish hatred and ill will, and to cultivate kindly feeling and kindly speech, then and not until then will the reconciliation between them be complete, and the work of reconstruction be consummated.

TWO FACES TO OUR VIEW.—While Southern papers say that slavery is dead, they at the same time argue that the country is bound to be ruined by its abolition. This is equivalent to a demand that the institution be restored. Most of the press of the States lately in the rebellion, together with nearly all the leading rebels, are presenting two faces on the subject, one looking toward Washington for amnesty and admission to the Union, and the other toward the Copperheads and the negro-hating multitude, for aid in the re-establishment of that "divine" institution. For example, the Augusta Constitutionalist, of the 23d, says:

Regarding the negro—the freed negro of the Southern States, what shall be done with him, is a momentous question; one requiring, nay, demanding the profoundest statesmanship and wisdom to solve, all others connected with the future of this sunny land, and his future too, sinking into comparative insignificance before it. It is a fixed fact that the negro is free. So it is received by those who, but a short time ago, claimed and held him to be a slave, and so it must be henceforth admitted. By the power of the sword, that dread and final arbiter of all political disputes between nations, or revolutions within nations, the once negro slave, is now a freeman, and, what to do with him may well embarrass the wisest in the land. Four millions of a helpless, ignorant, deplorably ignorant, and dependent race, in the twinkling of an eye as it were, turned loose to take care of themselves—to rival the white man in his pursuits, to advance in the scale of civilization and thrive, or to retrograde and perish. The transition, how sudden! The responsibility on those who brought this state of things about, how appalling! How shall it be met? What must be done? Perhaps from the past a lesson may be learned. Elsewhere, in other nations, negro emancipation from slavery has prevailed, with results so foreign from any ever anticipated by its advocates that it were well now to review and profit by them.

The editor then quotes the old, exploded pro-slavery statistics of St. Domingo to illustrate his intentions.

THE NATCHESS PASS ROAD.—The Olympia, (W. T.) Standard pronounces the Natchess Pass Wagon Road from Walla Walla to that place a complete success. Oliver Shead had made the trip through with a four-horse team and reports the road in good condition with the exception of ten miles of the western end, on which laborers are busily engaged.

The fast freight lines advertise to take freight from Umatilla to Boise City in three days, to Idaho City in three and a half days and to Owyhee in four days. The rates are to Boise City, fifteen cents per pound, to Idaho City and Owyhee, twenty cents, for all packages over one hundred pounds; packages under that weight, five cents per pound additional.

FOUND.—The body of the man Philips, lost sometime in July, near Oregon City, was yesterday found in the Willamette river, a short distance below Rock Island. He had evidently been drowned by accident while wandering about in an attempt to cross a slough on a log. The body was taken charge of by citizens and buried.

DESTITUTE.—The Dalles Mountaineer of yesterday says that many of the emigrants arriving there are destitute of all the necessaries of life and calls upon the residents of the Dalles to assist them.

SENATOR NYE SPEAKS.—The Carson Nev. Appeal of September 16th makes the following brief report of recent speech of Senator Nye at that place:

The speaker alluded to the great war and its wonderful results, and paid a glowing tribute to its triumphs; he alluded in fitting terms to the assassination of President Lincoln, and pointed to the triumph of our form of government in withstanding the shock of that great disaster; he spoke of the great work still before the civil intelligence of the country; counselled patience in dealing with the momentous questions which had arisen and which would arise; told the great truth that time and not legislation would work out those problems; he spoke in earnest terms of our greatness now and in the future as a commercial nation and eloquently eulogized Secretary Seward's denunciation of the action of France with regard to Mexico and said that England would have to pay for rebel piracies and that Max would have to leave Mexico; he told us the fact that when the war ended there were 1,200,000 men on the pay rolls; and that inside of ninety days an immense fleet of war ships of the Union would arrive in the Pacific; he spoke at length upon the Pacific Railroad, and said that the Government would take the matter firmly in hand; he urged the repeal of the Specific Contract Act and the passage of a usury law; he spoke encouragingly of the liberal policy of the Government toward the miners and [illegible] with an almost [illegible] appeal to men of the Union party to stand firm and united [illegible] a brilliant peroration upon the noble labors which his organization had perfected.

INTELLIGENT VOTERS.—The Copperhead Courier of September 16th gives the following:

A gentleman of anti-Copperhead proclivities, we are informed, asserted in the presence of an intelligent [illegible] last election day that those of his (the Indian's) countrymen who were recently put through the infant naturalization mill at Knight's Ferry and voted the Democratic ticket knew no more of what they were voting for than a flock of sheep. The Indian said he was mistaken—that they well understood their duty as American citizens. Just then a flock of the Garibaldi battalion approached. "I say," shouted the Indian man, addressing the squad at the top of his voice, "what is the name of the President of the United States? Tell me or you shan't vote." Imagine the stentorian laughter of the bystanders when as one man, the new fledged citizens of the great republic roared out "Ben Thorn! Ben Thorn!"

EVERYTHING WORN OUT.—A correspondent who has been traveling through the South since the war ended gives the following picture of affairs:

The dwelling houses of the South present a strange appearance in their furniture and household equipments. Everything has been mended, and generally in the rudest style. Window glass has given way to thin boards, and these are in use in railway coaches, and in the cities. Furniture is marred and broken and none has been replaced in four years. Dishes are cemented in various styles, and half the pitchers have no handles. A complete set of crockery is never seen and in very few families is there enough left to set a table in a manner approaching gentility. A set of forks with whole tines is a curiosity. Clocks and watches have nearly all stopped. Carpets have gone for army blankets. Pianos, where any are owned, are terribly out of tune. Clothing, including hats, bonnets and ladies and children's shoes are nearly all home made. Hair brushes and tooth brushes are all worn out; combs are broken and are not yet replaced; pins, needles, thread and a thousand such articles, which seem indispensable to house keeping are very scarce. Even in weaving on the looms corncobs have been substituted for spindles. Few have pocket knives. In fact everything that has been an article of sale at the South is wanting now. At the tables of those who were once esteemed luxurious providers you will find neither tea, coffee, sugar nor spices of any kind. Even candles in some cases have been replaced by a cup of grease, in which a piece of cloth is plunged for a wick. The problem which the South have to solve is not how to live comfortably during the war but how to live at all.

The state of things which this indicates will not disappear rapidly. Neither this season nor the next can bring the era of comfortable living. All are reduced to the same level; all are poor together. None have credit. Few know how to work and most are dependent. There is nothing in the habits, education or past history of the South that will justify the hope that her people will be equal to the emergency which is upon them. The help of the North alone will ever cause life to enter the body of this death again.

AN EXTRAORDINARY STORY.—The London (C. W.) Free Press tells the following extraordinary story about a man who was without food for three weeks and who became a living skeleton:

An American named James Rush, employed by our townsman Hunt at the Selle Mill in Southwold, left his work last 14th July for the purpose of returning to his home in the States. On the same day he arrived at and dined in Port Stanley, but finding no vessel there which answered his purpose he took the lake shore road westward, intending to spend a few days harvesting among the farmers in the neighborhood. Before climbing the bank he, being hot, resolved to refresh himself by a bath in the rippling waves of Lake Erie. He felt a little sick in the water and the next thing he remembers is finding himself naked on the sandy shore with a consciousness of having drank ravenously of water to assuage his great thirst. He was a day or two in getting at his clothes—his skin was cracked on his face and other places, and filled with sand, and so weak he failed many times in the arduous labor of climbing the bank. This he at last accomplished only on Saturday the 5th of August, when he, unable to climb a fence, made signs to two men in the field, who, fortunately for him, had come to make a bargain about some sheep. The two persons were McPherson, farmer, and Blake, butcher, Fingal. At first they took the solitary being for some wandering Indian, but, after some doubts, decided, as they saw him fall, that he must be drunk or injured, and then resolved to see what he was. When they came to him, imagine their horror and surprise at the sight of a living skeleton—a veritable live shadow of death!

This extraordinary case is to be accounted for by the supposition that Rush, who was a stout hearty man, had a sunstroke and an attack of typhoid fever, during which he in some way had obtained water from the lake, the only support except his own flesh to the demands of a consuming fever for seventeen days! His legs are now, as Hunt has remarked, "like pipe-stems"—but he is now carefully tended and cared for by McPherson, whose kindness will, we hope, soon restore this unfortunate man to health and friends and usefulness.

PRESIDENTIAL "ON DITS."—A well known editor of a prominent Northern journal said to the President: "The Democracy say you will yet be found with them; that you have always been a good Democrat, and will always so remain." "Do they?" responded Johnson, "well, sir, you are at liberty to tell all such gentlemen that while, as President, I shall endeavor to drop my partisan character, I certainly am not prepared to do more than pray for those who despitefully use me. I think they stand in need of prayers, and it's all I can do for them." A friend told me lately that in talking with the President about the Blairs, he wittily remarked that the only trouble about the older Blair was that he had not the propriety to die when his term of usefulness had expired, adding, "and that time, sir, was a long time ago—an all fired long time ago."—Correspondence Missouri Democrat.

THE FREEDMEN.—General Saxton, Assistant Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau for South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, has issued an official order for the regulation of marital relations among the newly emancipated negroes. The institution of slavery created a very confused condition of matrimonial affairs with the enslaved; the colored man who was supposed to be a husband being frequently in doubt as to what particular woman had the strongest claim on him to the title of wife and the woman being equally puzzled as to who was really her husband. The order mentioned is designed, if possible, to reduce some kind of system out of this chaos and to cultivate respect for the marriage relation among the benighted freedmen.

Inspector-General Strong, of the Freedmen's Bureau, who has for some time past been engaged in an inspection of freedmen's affairs in the Mississippi valley, says that their general condition and conduct throughout that immense stretch of country notwithstanding the disturbed state of things and all the difficulties and prejudices which have had to be contended with, is most encouraging.

A LIVELY OPPOSITION.—A lively contest is going on between the two fast freight lines from Umatilla to Boise City. On a late trip from Boise, to Umatilla, an accident happened to one of Du Bell & Co's teams, by which three horses were killed, three more badly used up and the wagon considerably damaged. No person was injured by the casualty. The editor of the Umatilla Advertiser was promised a "licking" by the Agent of one line if he reported the accident, while the Agent of the other line threatened him with a like result if he failed to make an item of it. Rather a bad fix Mr. Advertiser, but as items were scarce, you took the chances.—[illegible]

DATES TO OCTOBER 2

Guerrilla Outrages.

NASHVILLE, Sept. 17.—A band of thirty or fifty guerrillas near Springfield, Robinson county, yesterday committed indiscriminate robberies and [illegible] of the merchants of that locality. Thomas J. Payne was killed [illegible] and family [illegible] at Adams [illegible] on the Kentucky road. They plundered everybody they caught.

From Ireland.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2[illegible].—The Herald has a letter from Dublin of the 11th which says: The state of excitement produced in Ireland by reports of an intended invasion by armed bands, or an army of American citizens from the United States, extends every day. Since the close of the harvest season, the last days of July and the commencement of August, we have visited the chief cities in the Provinces of Munster and Connaught and instituted inquiries as to how far the peasantry might be expected to co-operate with their trans-Atlantic brethren. The result of the investigation is that the Fenians are to almost every portion of this Island now, but that there is no universal turnout for such purposes. Men under instructions at times and places meet, the number from four to five hundred. Musters are held in places almost inaccessible to the police and without their gatherings being discovered, so few arrests have been made. The drills are held for the most part in the neighborhood of the mountain ranges of Tipperary, Limerick and Cork. I have had no means to ascertain with accuracy the number of enrolled men in the Irish branch of Fenianism, but as far as I have been informed they do not fall short of 150,000. The writer then enumerates the means of repression in Dublin, Cork, Limerick, Belfast, Londonderry and all other important points held by regular troops, infantry, horse or artillery. A frigate, with some gunboats, from Bombay lies on the southwest coast, from the desolate shores of Connemara, west of the Bay of Galway. The British forces on the Island might be numbered in the way of troops of the line at heavy infantry, 9 regiments of veterans, armed constables, and police armed and drilled, 2,200.

Sir Hugh Rose, who succeeded Lord Clyde as Commander in Chief of the English Army in India, has just taken command of the Dublin military district. It is hoped no doubt that he will be as successful in the treatment of the Fenians as he was in the case of the Sepoys. It will interest the Fenians in the United States to know the subject of their Government has been for some months before the Council of the Sacred College in England, and that official letters received in Dublin state that the directions to the Archbishops and Bishops and Clergy from the Holy Father are to let it alone, at least for the present.

Mexico.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Tribune has a letter from Matamoras, Aug. [illegible], which says the success met with by the force under Gen. Escobedo has encouraged the Liberals to fresh efforts. In and about Camargo there is now a good force of about 600 and among them 25 to 30 officers who have served in the late Confederate States Army. A second body of some 500 men is 15 miles from Carmargo, and at other points south of that place there are bodies of from two to three hundred men. In all there is a force of 2,500 men ready for the next blow to be struck. The next movement that will be made will be on the Rio Grande to attack this place. It will be made before information can reach the enemy, by a dashing attack of a force of about two thousand, which can easily take this place. Some of the troops in it will not fight. In these parts the French do not number more than 10,000 men. The battalion of the Legion is at Monterey. Armed with rifles on the road leading to this place this handful of men could not aid Matamoras in case of attack. The French gunboat Tactique arrived off the road and now lies with the rest of the naval force under the command of Capt. Comet.

Another letter to the Tribune of the 7th, says: The entire corps of Liberals lying about the San Juan river has been put in motion, but their plans are not known. May be they intend to attack this place at once. Cortinas, after a good deal of insubordination, has been forced into the traces. He is now acting as if in the hope, spirit and wish to do some deed of note. They may be passed from the left bank of the Rio Grande with a command estimated at from 4000 to 5000 men, 3 rifled guns, delivered to him some time ago by order of General Steele. I think the attack will be made on this place within three days, and that if any other movement be made it will be only a feint. In fact the Liberals must have this place. Its money would fill the army chest and it would be a port of entry from which a small income could be derived from duties, and as long as the French force in the country is not greater, a partisan war can be kept up by the Liberal Government. The extent of territory is so vast that the enemy can only hold important points, and cannot spare men to act in the field. The enemy they can put down, but want the means to keep together. It is likely the Liberals can hold out with some aid, from twenty to twenty eight months longer. As long as the Government can be held the Government will exist, and there will be just cause to continue this for some time. As to what is going on at the capital, Chihuahua, it is safe, at least, until the French can extend their posts and send six or eight thousand good troops against it, which cannot be done until they are reinforced. Communication with the seat of Government is by no means easy, and can only be had at long intervals. It is some time since anything has been heard from Chihuahua. The General in command of the forces in this State is in ignorance of what is going on at the capital. If it is safe, it is also nearly cut off by the natural obstructions of the country.

Foreign.

HALIFAX, Sept. 29.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News writes: In the absence of more exciting matter the French papers were beginning to take great interest in the Fenian movement in Ireland. The fact of a recent exchange of international courtesies don't blind the French press to the frightful oppression and iron yoke under which poor Ireland groans. They do not care to conceal the satisfaction which the liberation of the Celtic nationality would afford them. The Very, a Parus ultra Montane journal notices with evident glee the prospect of disturbance in Ireland.

The weekly returns of the Bank of France show a decrease in cash of four and a half million francs.

It is stated that Donald McKay, the well known ship builder, is in close communication with the Admiralty on the subject of torpedoes, which are to be laid down in the channels to the English harbor in case of war.

More Testimony Against Wirtz.

The Herald's special dispatch says: General Baker has lately come into possession of letters from the Adjutant's Office at Andersonville, together with files of documents and orders which shed a great deal of new light upon the management of that infamous den and fixed the paternity of many brutal orders beyond dispute by letter press copies of the originals. These documents which have been unearthed only after a long and untiring search have been turned over to the Judge Advocate, in which case the trial will be conducted by him, the evidence for the prosecution being re-opened for that purpose.

The complicity of high rebel officials in the prison atrocities bids fair to become known from evidence furnished by themselves.

Gunboat Sold.

The United States gunboat Galatea, the first of the class of eleven guns, has been sold by acting Rear Admiral Bell, commander of the Brooklyn navy yard, to the Hawaiian Government for $1[illegible],000. The Galatea will be equipped and receive her armament at this port.

Pacific Railroad.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—The first through train from St. Louis over the Missouri Pacific Railroad, reached here this morning. The road is now in complete running order for its entire length. Regular through trains will commence running on Monday next.

Reorganization in Florida.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Times' Jacksonville, Fla., correspondent has the following: The progress toward reorganization under the administration of Gov. Martin is satisfactory and favorable to the Union cause. Several colonies for Brazil have been started by the disappointed nobility in various localities in the State, but as they gain additional assurance that they are not to be punished for their treason, they become gradually reconciled and conclude to remain. Great ignorance prevails among the poor classes of the South. In Florida, many of the people even now are made to believe that Kirby Smith is at the head of conquering hosts and coming to their relief against the detested Yankees. It is also reported that many negroes hired ostensibly, to get out timber, &c., on the Gulf coast, have been taken on board of vessels and run over to Cuba as slaves. There are about six thousand troops in the State, mostly black. They are scattered in small parties at all points, constituting a guard against violence and bloodshed. Many of the planters are desirous of renting their plantations to Northern men. The cotton in the State is (which was surrendered) being forwarded to market. It is mostly long staple. Over six thousand bales have been shipped from this port. There is much more here and on the way.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—A gentleman named [illegible], a Professor of Geology from Pennsylvania, who was [illegible] and [illegible] exploring [illegible] parts of the State, left his hotel, the International, on the 4th of September last and has not since been heard from. Words of Kindness

Words of kindness! oh, how sweetly
Ye salute the human heart!
Ye with joys forever greet me

And I'll thank ye for the blessings,
With the gladness of a child,
While I give your sweet caressings
Kisses soft as music wild.

Words of kindness, whispers spoken
By the [illegible]
How [illegible]
Of [illegible]
Oh! I think [illegible]
The [illegible] only [illegible] of joy
And [illegible] with [illegible]
[illegible] that God [illegible]

Words of kindness—pearls of Eden's
Shining [illegible] the earth
Words of comfort to the sightless
Offsprings of sweet joy and mirth

Lead men back to paths of peace,
Reconcile the frail to duty,
And bid woe and grief to cease.

Words of kindness! links of heaven
Oh, how ye sublime the soul!
Ye can soothe the hearts once driven
From life's sunny, happy goal
Thanks and praises now I offer
To the God of earth and sea
And I hope that heaven may proffer
Words of kindness unto me.

From Blackfoot.—The Walla Walla Statesman publishes a letter from Helena, Montana, dated August 29th, from which we make the following extracts

The country is both broad and rich in its mineral area, and daily extending, until its known dimensions have become mammoth in size.

I shall not attempt any such particulars as rocker yields, sluice yields, etc., for the simple reason that stories afloat are too large to be credited by the writer. But again there is little work doing. As one gulch after another is opened a grand stampede follows, and as this occurs about twice per week, it is hardly to be supposed that any great amount of labor can be performed. I have almost fancied while looking at a "stampede," that we would soon have to encourage immigration in order to fill up the vacant places.

The great difficulty of establishing permanently in this country, is to decide upon the central point. I am of the opinion that either in Bitter Root valley, or Hellgate valley must be a town of no small dimensions. It is now a settled case that Oregon, Washington and Northern Idaho must contribute very largely to the supplies of this country. Unless we have a very heavy accession to the stock of flour now here, that article will reach $1 per pound before spring. Nearly every article of merchandise pays an enormous profit here over freight and cost in your own town. The grand supply point for this place is Salt Lake City. From others, I learn that goods are equally high, and from the bare fact that 25,000 troops are to be quartered there in addition to the present swollen population, this winter, we need look but for little from there. No more will come from the Plains to speak of, so tell your enterprising merchants and farmers to grasp this trade and secure it while in their power to do so. It needs but a single effort, but that should be put forth this fall. All goods from that side stand well and will receive the preference here by a liberal per centage.

The emigration from the West has so far been very great, and I learn many more are preparing to come. One word about it reader. Do not come to this country until another season, unless you can well afford to lay still through a long northern winter without a chance of labor, and for your own sake, pecuniarily, and otherwise, if you are a producer, do not neglect to plant and sow every inch of tillable soil you have, for by this means you will bring the gold of these mines much more easily to your purse than by hunting the mountain ravines to find it. Few miners succeed in making fortunes, but all miners must pay a tribute to your labor, and therefore yours is not only a life of comparative comfort, but one that is the most sure to obtain that fortune, as you tax both the fortunate and unfortunate for every article of consumption.

Smelting Process.—We were yesterday shown bars of gold and silver, taken out of the Gregory ores by the smelting process being introduced here by James E. Lyon & Co. We are unable to give the minutiæ of the mode of working. In general it is as follows: The ores are first crushed in Cornish rollers, stamps, or some similar process, but not so fully as for amalgamation. They are then passed through a separator or concentrator, by which the quartz is separated from the sulphide ore at an estimated cost of fifty cents per ton in this country. The sulphide ore is then roasted to free it from its sulphur. For this purpose a reverbatory furnace or other apparatus may be used. It is then passed into a melting furnace, the chief flux used being lead—the lead ores of this country being used for the purpose. The metals obtained are said to be composed of lead, silver and gold only. The lead is then to be separated by cupellation or other process. Whether or not other fluxes are to be used we are not informed. For fuel the wood in this country answers every purpose. Experiments were first made in the vicinity of New York. The tailings of the Gregory ores yielded two hundred and fourteen dollars per ton and upwards. The success of the experiment there has induced a repetition of them here, which has proved for the process all that was expected. The company is compelled to delay operations on an extensive scale until the fire brick can be made. They are contracting for the manufacture of one hundred thousand. We spent several months time in '62, in striving to melt these ores economically, but were unable to do so satisfactorily. This obstacle was found in the way of every one who tried to smelt in Colorado. No one ever doubted that more gold and silver could be obtained by this than any other process. The success of the company lies in securing the result with small cost. In principle this process may be said to resemble a fire assay on a large scale, minus the expense. The process saves about the same per centage as the fire assay. Mr. Lyon does not hesitate to pronounce this smelting process far superior to all others and eminently a practicable one. Hence his great preparation.—Miner's Register.

Opposition.—The starting of the Fast Freight Line has resulted in the liveliest little opposition in the passenger business ever witnessed in Idaho. Both lines seem to be running full most of the time and everybody is going or coming. Fare which has heretofore been sixty dollars to Umatilla was yesterday down to half that price, with a prospect of being lower to-day. This is all very fine for those who want to travel, but cannot be very profitable to carriers, and we suggest to the latter that the field is broad enough for both to be profitably employed, provided they take it cool and go slow. Hostilities are apt to derange the finances of the combatants. It is all very pleasant to spend a dollar in causing your opponent to lose six bits while in a belligerent mood, but nine times out of ten the revenue question eventually brings the parties to terms. If however our stage companies are determined to furnish us a free show or a show at half price, there's no country in the world where the people can appreciate it better, or stand more of it than right here in Idaho.—Statesman, S p. 26.

Simon Cameron.—This noted politician, on the occasion of a serenade given to him lately in Philadelphia, spoke as follows:

There is no reason why the men appointed by that great and good man, Abraham Lincoln, [great cheering] should be out of their places the moment he was murdered. Why should Thomas have been removed? Surely no man during the great struggle for the existence of our country behaved better than he. He raised three regiments, and himself headed them in the field. When a subordinate of his was a defaulter, he didn't whine about the matter, but said to the Government, "I will pay the amount of defalcation myself," and he paid it to the uttermost dollar. [Applause.]

I believe in the doctrine of rotation in office. It ought to rotate men out when we get possession of the party, but I do not think we should turn out our own friends unless they are unfaithful.

I wish our members of Congress would look to the interests of the State a little more, and do a little less in getting office. There was a time when Philadelphia sent her greatest men to Congress. There was a day when your Sergeants and Binneys, and that class of men, represented you. Then the term member of Congress from Philadelphia was synonymous with greatness.

In those days men were too proud to loiter about the departments in Washington hunting up jobs, or meddling with little appointments—with one son in the hall and two in the lobby. [Laughter and cheers.]

The Scene of Lincoln's Murder.—During the process of converting Ford's theatre, in Washington, into a fire-proof deposit for the archives of the late Southern rebellion, under the direction of the War Department, the door, furniture and partitions of the private box occupied by Mr. Lincoln, at the time of his assassination, have been carefully removed, and placed under lock and key. Every article connected with the terrible tragedy has been taken in charge by the Government. The relic hunters, however, it is said are as numerous as ever.

A Richmond correspondent says: "It is, I am told, a remarkable fact, that the Israelites in this city knew every defeat or victory twelve hours before any other people, getting it through Benjamin. He knew of the fall of Fort Fisher the very night it fell, when it was twenty-four hours before the public knew it. They made immense fortunes."

The Department of State is informed that the French commander in Mexico has ordered the restoration of the rebel property taken to Mexico.

The Late Victor Smith.—Jared C. Brown, writing to the Bulletin from Port Angelos, W. T., says of the late Victor Smith, formerly Collector at that port, who was lost on the Brother Jonathan:

By his death the Government has lost one of the most energetic, faithful and competent officers on the Pacific coast. His whole thoughts were for the interests of the Government, and the advancement of the laboring classes. His death has cast a deep gloom over this community. He was a man of strong will and great force of character, ever ready to oppose the selfish intrigues of speculators, and to expose fraud and corruption. He was a frank and bold humanist, an ardent friend of human freedom, a warm companion of education, morality and religion. When he first came here he found designing men endeavoring to defraud the Government, and exposed them promptly, incurring thereby the most bitter animosity. He procured the removal of the Custom house from Port Townsend, a place totally unfit for it, to the beautiful site of Port Angelos, the most eligible place for the collection of revenue on Puget Sound. He urged the passage of an Act declaring this place a Government reservation and ordering it to be laid out and sold in lots on Government account, thereby giving the poor man an opportunity to purchase a home for a mere trifle, though depriving speculators of a rich harvest. He encouraged the establishment of a public library, church and lyceum. His nature was large and liberal, fond of the beautiful, free from malice and revenge, kindly and cheerful. When he took his departure from San Francisco on the Brother Jonathan he was sick and weary from the result of watching over the trust committed to him not long before, while a passenger in the unlucky Golden Rule. The sympathies of this community are with his wife and family.

Jeff Davis and his Family.—It is stated that on the 25th of August an officer of authority called on Jeff Davis, who announced himself as in very good health, the only drawback being a carbuncle on his leg and a slight touch of the erysipelas. In speaking of Wirtz, Davis said that he had never seen or heard of him before his arrest, adding that from what he knew of Winder, having been a classmate of his at West Point, he did not believe he would be guilty of such awful acts of inhumanity as are laid to his charge. In other words, he considers Wirtz the prime actor, and the only rebel officer guilty of the inhuman treatment of our men at Andersonville.

A subscription is in circulation in Richmond for the relief of Mrs. Jefferson Davis and family, who it is said are in reduced circumstances. So far the effort has met with very liberal responses, and the probability is that enough will be raised to supply them with all they need.

John's First Appearance.—The interesting sight so familiar to old Californians of long trains of celestials on the move in single file, supporting the middle of their long handled shovels or a bamboo stick with pendant sacks of rice, chop sticks, rockers, and gum boots, filed along Idaho street yesterday morning to the great amusement of lookers on. Some dusky pilgrims eyed the Johns with great curiosity, as it was their first introduction to the inhabitants of the Flowery Kingdom. John informed the curious crowd that he came from Washoe, and was going to Bannock, from which we judge he is nearly as slow to learn the names of places in this country as some editors.—Idaho Statesman.

A writer in the New York World eulogizes General Robert E. Lee. He is "an illustrious leader," whose sword "has never been stained by bad faith or dishonor."

The writer is apparently not aware that Lee deliberately violated his oath of allegiance to the United States, by which he had been educated and honored; that he is guilty of treason as well as of perjury, and that he is responsible for more useless and criminal bloodshed than any other living man, except it is Jefferson Davis.—Chicago Republican.

Speaking of the late election, the Louisville Journal says: "We have for some time been trying, not wholly without success, to convince ourselves that the number of actual rebels in soul has been inconsiderable since the close of the war but, in view of the results of last Monday's elections in some parts of Kentucky, we are apprehensive that we have been mistaken. Certainly, some of the bitterest and boldest, or rather most audacious, of all the rebels and rebel sympathizers in the State, have been elected to the Legislature by large majorities—elected, not in spite of their being rebels or quasi-rebels, but for the reason that they are so.

Supplies for the Blackfoot Mines.—A Mr. Waterbury, writing to the W. W. Statesman, from Helena, Montana, under date of August 20th, speaking of the Blackfoot mines, says:

I tell you, if the people of your side of the mountains will now bestir themselves, they will have the "biggest thing" that has ever been offered to them. A little energy in opening up a direct line for travel hither, and a reasonable charge for goods, supplies and freighting is all that is needed to secure to them one of the best markets in the northern country.

President Hopkins of Williams College, in his recent Baccalaureate Sermon, held it "to be demonstrable that the second table of the law—'thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself'—is the only law of a stable society. It is radical. There is in it the intensest radicalism. The very essence of it is to give every human being his rights—to every human being. What more can radicalism ask?"

The Chattanooga Gazette speaks of discrimination against Northern men in the business affairs of that city, and protests against it. It threatens to print the names of all persons who persist in such a narrow minded course, and says: "We desire Yankees, Dutchmen, Irishmen, Chinamen and everybody else, to locate and invest their capital here. If it is not brought here by strangers we certainly shall never have any."

It is rumored that Gov. Sharkey of Mississippi, has failed to keep promises made to the President regarding the policy he would pursue in reorganizing the State Government, and that his head (metaphorically) is to be the penalty of his contumacy.
